The marriage of Miss Dale Arlene Carter, daughter of Mrs. Eddie C. Carter and the late Mr. Carter, of Appomattox, and Clarence William Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Jones, of Route 1, Concord, took place Friday evening, August 22 at 8 o'clock, in the New Hope Baptist Church, Vera.

The Rev. Charles Addington performed the double ring ceremony before a background of lighted candles in graduated standards, with arrangements of white chrysanthemums and gradiol offset by tropical and native foliage, and an arch interspersed with greens and clusters of white bells.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. William D. O'Brien at the piano and Mrs. Charles Addington, soloist.

Given in marriage by her brother, Harry D. Carter, the bride wore a gown of chantilly lace and tulle with a mandarin collar. The fitted bodice of lace over satin had long sleeves ending in a point over the hands. The full floor-length skirt was of alternating lace and tulle ruffles. Her fingertip illusion veil fell from a close fitting cap of Swiss braid and she carried a prayer book topped with an orchid and showered with stephanotis.

Mrs. Paul Nash was her sister's matron of honor. Miss Violet Martin and Miss Inez Ferguson were bridesmaids. They wore dresses of Swiss sheer over taffeta in pastel shades and carried nosegays of summer flowers showered with rainbow ribbons.

Little Freda Jones, niece of the groom, was flower girl.

Harold Beasley, brother-in-law of the groom was best man and the ushers were Herbert Carter and Donald Nash.

After the ceremony the bride's mother entertained with a reception in the church social hall.

Homemakers Items

Painted furniture is back in vogue.

Miss Ruth Jamison, home furnishings specialist at VPI, says the practical homemaker will consider following the fashion of painted furniture as a way of re-using an otherwise shabby piece, or giving a ready-to-paint piece a more expensive appearance.

Here is the way to paint furniture at home:

Remove all the old finish with paint and varnish remover. Work with the grain of the wood. Sand the surface with 2/0 finishing sandpaper. Clean all surfaces with a cloth dampened with turpentine.

Use a suitable under - coater. Proper flat or satin gloss, and a flat bristle brush. A piece of furniture will need one under-coating and two finishing coats; or two under-coatings and one finishing coat. It is usually best to start from the top and work to the bottom, being careful not to leave an unpainted section completely surrounded by freshly painted surfaces.

Dip the brush 1-3 of the way up the ferrule. Brush with the grain in long parallel strokes. Avoid puddles and runs at the edges and corners. Sandpaper each coat with 6/0 sandpaper when it is thoroughly dry. Apply the second coat across the brush marks to subdue those left by the first.

Apply two coats of enamel, rubbing each with pumice and oil when dry or after 24 hours. Be sure to carefully remove all pumice before the second coat is applied. Rub the last coat until you have a good looking patina.

To be satisfactory, cookie sheets and pans should be sturdy enough not to bend out of shape. A rolled-top edge gives sheet metal pans strength and rigidity. If a cookie sheet does not have a turned-up edge all around, it should be made of heavier metal to keep it rigid.

COMMENT ON SPORTS

By Pete Fritchie

Washington.- With the baseball races as good as over, it's time to turn our attention to football, which will be interrupted by the World Series in early October. The college All-Stars have already kicked off the season with an upset win — a good omen for 1958.

The All-Stars were supposed to be awed by the Detroit Lions, but you would never have known it as they poured it on, with both field goals (the specialty of the pros) and touchdowns. All of which makes one wonder if the pre-season champions of 1958 will be able to live up to their billing.

Among those already picked to top the nation's collegiate teams are Ohio State, Michigan State, Notre Dame, Oklahoma and several others. Oklahoma doesn't get its chance for revenge against Notre Dame this year (perhaps luckily, for the Irish are loaded) and it will be difficult to gauge the Sooners, although they do meet Oregon and Texas on successive Saturdays.

Michigan State, which probably had a team the equal of any in the country last year, has lost twenty lettermen and should be weaker this year. Notre Dame should be stronger this year and the schedule is weaker: Duke and North Carolina have replaced Michigan State and Oklahoma. Since Michigan State never seemed to have much trouble with Notre Dame, this is all for the good—at South Bend.

Ohio State is picked as the top 1958 team by many. The backfield will be outstanding and the January Rose Bowl champions may go all the way. If they are to run their winning streak to 28 games (it's now nineteen) the Buckeyes will take Wisconsin, Purdue, and Michigan, among others.

Auburn could be stronger than expected again this year. Fourteen of twenty-three linemen and nine of fourteen backs are returning from the national championship team of 1957. But everyone will be gunning for the 1957 champs and it's expecting too much to look for another marvelous defensive limitation of 2.8 points per foe from Auburn.

So look for plenty of upsets. Also strong this year will be: Mississippi U., Texas Christian, Clemson, Navy, North Carolina, Texas, Miami, Purdue, Florida, South Carolina, Colorado, Holy Cross, Southern Methodist, Oregon State, and possibly Georgia Tech.

DOCTOR TALK

By

Benujamin B. Blackmon, M. D.

During summer there is, annually, an outcropping of intestinal upsets, usually characterized by nausea, vomiting, and diarrhea.

These "summer diarrheas" are frequent occurances in the hot weather because of inadequacies in food preservation. Much care should be taken in the preparation of foods which potentially could harbor common harmful bacteria.

As an illustration, sporadic epidemics of so-called food poisoning are often brought to our attention dramatically where a large number of people have eaten from the same kitchen. Hundreds of school children were stricken suddenly after eating a normal meal at a school lunchroom earlier this year.

A great deal of pain, prostration and panic among those involved usually results. Investigative procedures following an episode of this nature usually show one of the foods to be contaminated by a type of bacteria which could have been avoided by adequate preservation and preparation.

A minute number of these common bacteria are normally found in most foods. When given an opportunity to multiply through a delayed period of growth in abnormally elevated temperatures, not suitable for food storage, this results in increasing increased proportion of bacteria presents a hazard.

Proper refrigeration is important in summer foods, custards, dairy products, some other foods. Foods should be observed in the menu after cooking—as well as before.

By all means, leftovers should be avoided in summer as food poisoning or intestinal infections as does the public, often, if not attended to promptly by your physician.

Health and Beauty

Health and beauty

The degree of peace and pleasantness that marks a family's dinner hour has long been regarded as an indication of the graciousness of the family's living.

A smart homemaker will do her best to overcome the pressures of her own day and insure a relaxed mealtime atmosphere. When she does this she is doing much more than providing a quiet evening, she is helping to build a line of defense against jangled nerves in family members. In the long run this is insurance against actual physical disease.

Some doctors have said that studies indicate that almost half of those people seeking medical attention are suffering from ailments brought on by prolonged emotional stress. Long lasting and concentrated doses of worry, anxiety, or fear can knock the body's chemistry so out of kilter that illness may result.

One outstanding authority on stress has pointed out that all disease stems from it. Although this view is still in the highly controversial class, a definite link between sickness and stress — whether physical, emotional or a combination of both — is now generally accepted in medical fields.

The emotional stress that gets people down is the kind that makes it difficult or nearly impossible to relax. Intense and persistent anger, fear, frustration or worry kept bottled up, can threaten health.

Emotional tension one is aware of, even when it is unpleasant, can be useful if it leads to efforts to solve problems at hand.
